Nuclear disaster. Chernobyl Exclusion Zone and Zaporizhzhia Nuclear Power Plant under Russian control

- ❖ In Zaporizhzhia the staff is under strong psychological pressure from the occupiers.
- ❖ Chernobyl-Kyiv high-voltage line is currently disconnected due to damage by the Russians. Chernobyl station and all nuclear facilities in the Exclusion Zone were left without electricity. Currently, the facility is using emergency diesel generators to power itself, but the diesel fuel supply allows for only 48 hours of electricity supply.

About 20,000 spent fuel assemblies are stored at the facility - 1. They need constant cooling. Which is possible only if there is electricity. If it is not there, the pumps will not cool. As a result, the temperature in the holding pools will increase, soaring, and the release of radioactive substances into the environment will occur. The wind can transfer the radiation to other regions of Ukraine, Belarus, Russia and Europe.

- ❖ The new nuclear research facility in Kharkiv received additional damage.

To EU leaders, world governments and the CEOs of major finance firms:

“ As citizens around the world, we're calling on you to ban imports of Russian oil, gas and coal and stop doing business with Russian fossil fuel companies now. This means no more imports and no new financing, investment, insurance coverage, and other financial services to these companies, and divesting from existing assets. Take this historic step, urgently accelerate the clean energy transition and implement bold social policies to protect the most vulnerable.

Shell announces intent to withdraw from Russian oil and gas

Mar 8, 2022

Shell plc (Shell) today announced its intent to withdraw from its involvement in all Russian hydrocarbons, including crude oil, petroleum products, gas and liquefied natural gas (LNG) in a phased manner, aligned with new government guidance. As an immediate first step, the company will stop all spot purchases of Russian crude oil. It will also shut its service stations, aviation fuels and lubricants operations in Russia.

Ukraine war: US bans Russian energy imports and UK will stop using Russian oil this year

US President Joe Biden said the latest sanctions against Moscow over the invasion of Ukraine would target the "main artery" of Russia's economy while Boris Johnson said "disgust and outrage" over the war was mounting worldwide.
